GENERAL ELECTION
SHOWS UNUSUALLY LIGHT LOCAL VOTE

Robison Believed To Have Lead—
Predictions Say $400,000 Road
Bond Issue Will Carry By Big Majority.

SECRET BALLOT PREVENTS
INFORMATION ABOUT RESULTS

The general election began this morning with the opening of the polls at 9 o'clock. The city hall ward voting place is the city hall, the south side ward voting place is the empty Sprague building on Cumberland avenue, the opera house ward voting place is in Chadwell's shoe store, and the west end ward voting place is in the McKay building.

The election officers follow: Opera House, M. S. Hollingsworth, A. W. Oaks, Arthur Rhorer and R. L. Maddox; south side, J. H. McGiboney, J. E. Evans, George Vanbeber and M. L. Foley; city hall, J. M. Miller, Wallace Gastman, Henry Smith and W. H. Ausmus; west end, T. G. Anderson, B. H. Perkins, H. G. Oaks and Robert Lyons.

The vote in all four precincts was very light this morning and there seems to be little interest in the election. Conjectures are that Robison will carry Middlesboro by a big majority and that the road bond issue will carry. The change in city government is in doubt.

A report from Pineville this morning says that the $400,000 road bond issue will carry by an overwhelming majority. The correspondent says: "According to Squire Creech, who has been in close touch with the rural districts of Bell County, Wasiole, Straight Creek, Curry, Arjay, Gross, Tejay, Calloway, Varrilla, Clear Fork, Fendale, Eccleson, Chino, Cold Springs, Lone Jack, Greaser Creek, Buckeye, Little Clear Creek, and outlying districts are going to vote from 90 to 97 per cent in favor of the bond issue. This sweeping victory, Judge Creech says, will show that the mountain people have awakened to the need of getting out of the mud and also that they are tired of seeing that money in the state treasury used entirely for building roads in the central part of the state."

The plan for a special session received general endorsement among Congressional leaders. It is understood that the President feels by a meeting two weeks in advance of the regular session the legislative program can be so advanced as to enable Congress to clean up its slate by the time the regular session ends March 4.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Harding will make no post-election statement, it was said at the White House, because he believes that the opinion rendered today at the ballot boxes, regardless of their nature, needs no interpretation from the President.

COLLISION ON PINEVILLE
ROAD SATURDAY NIGHT

Two Ford cars ran together on the Pineville road Saturday night about nine o'clock. The car coming toward Middlesboro was being driven by C. R. Davis of Barbourville, who saw the other car approaching at a rapid rate of speed and slowed his car down and drove to one side of the road. The other car, driven by Bill Bush, also of Barbourville, crashed into Mr. Davis' car, but did not stop. Both cars were damaged to some extent but no one was injured. Mr. Davis stuck a screw driver into his hand, causing a painful though not serious injury.

HOTEL INVITATIONS LOST IN MAIL—MORE SENT TODAY

M. Todes arrived this morning to be here until after the opening of the hotel and to make final arrangements in the matter. Mr. Todes is very much distressed about the matter of invitations for the opening. The second bunch of invitations, sent out to Louisville last Thursday to be sure to get here Thursday night, was lost in transit and he got his third bunch only yesterday. The second package was sent special delivery and insured, and the matter of its loss is being taken up with the Louisville post office. Mr. Todes expressed profound regret that so many invitations were delayed and he hopes all of the hotel's friends will attend the opening.

The 9-piece Walferson orchestra will arrive Thursday morning to play during the day as well as in the evening. The menus will be made as souvenirs, with the musical program included with them.

Several prominent guests for the opening have already arrived, among them Attorney General C. I. Dawson who came in this morning.

HARLAN, LYNCH AND BENHAM
INVITED TO HOTEL OPENING

J. H. Chesney and John Miller have returned from a trip to Harlan, Lynch and Benham where they went as the personal representatives of the owner and lessee of the New Cumberland Hotel to invite residents of those places to Middlesboro for the formal opening.

Mr. Chesney said this morning that he expected at least sixty visitors to the opening from the three places visited.

He also reports the need of rain in Lynch. H. says Looney Creek is dry and the houses on the hills are without water in the wells. Unless it rains in the next two weeks he predicts a critical condition of that district.

The X-ray was so called by Professor Rontgen because in algebra X signifies an unknown quantity, and the mechanism of the ray was unknown to him.

PROHIBITION OFFICER'S SON
TAKEN IN VA. STILL RAID

CLINTWOOD, Va., Nov. 7.—James S. Mullins, special justice of the peace for Dickenson county, assisted by Sumpter J. Colley, town marshal of Clintwood, captured and destroyed a large complete illicit distillery near Freezing this week and arrested Thelma Colley at the place. Another man was at the distillery, but made his escape. He was recognized by the officers and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

This raid has attracted considerable attention throughout this section because of the prominence of the operators of the distillery, and the fact that Mr. Colley, one of the raiding party, is an uncle of the young Colley who was arrested at the distillery, and that young Colley, is a son of C. S. Colley, a Federal prohibition officer.

FUNDS FOR ROADS
INCREASE IN YEAR

Seven Counties Have Already Passed
Bond Issues—5 More Decide Today.

By Associated Press.
FRANFORD, Nov. 7.—More than $5,000,000 will be available for road construction in Kentucky next year in addition to the regular funds contributed by the State and Federal government provided the bond issues before the people of seven Kentucky counties pass at the election today, according to Joe Goggs, State Highway Engineer. This sum also includes funds received from former bond issues which have not been expended entirely, according to Mr. Goggs.

This sum may be increased by the action of other counties in the State which are contemplating bond issues. Mr. Goggs said. The maximum bond issue allowed for road construction, according to Mr. Goggs, is 5 per cent of the assessed valuation of the county's property, and many of the counties are anxious to get the full amount.

Counties in which bond issues have been voted upon within the last year with the amount of the issue, follow: Bath, $300,000; Campbell, $1,000,000; McCreary, $200,000; Greenup, $200,000; Estill, $300,000; Grant, $250,000; and Kenton, $500,000.

Perry and Muhlenberg counties lead the State in the amount of their proposed bond issues with $500,000 each. People of these counties will vote on the question today, according to Mr. Goggs. Other counties with the amount of the proposed issue, that will consider the question today follow: Knott, $200,000; Bell, $400,000; Lee, $200,000; Morgan, $100,000, and Pendleton, $200,000.

Reports received by Mr. Goggs from the various counties in which the road bond issues are up for consideration today are optimistic as to the result. The mountain counties especially, according to Mr. Goggs, have shown great interest in road building recently and have indicated that the issues will be voted by large majorities.

The report of the road department recently issued shows that approximately $10,000,000 went for road building and maintenance of approximately 900 miles of road during 1920, 1921 and 1922. With $6,000,000 available for use within the next year in addition to the regular road funds construction should be greatly increased and many Kentucky counties should be able to "get out of the mud," according to Mr. Goggs.

RADICAL CHANGE SCHEDULED FOR NEXT CONGRESS

Leaders in Both Senate and House
Probably To Change—Distinct Upheaval If Democrats Get Majority.

INCREASED INSURGENCY
IN SENATE IS PREDICTED

NO HEAD WITH COPY—M.
By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Regardless of the election results, there will be a new deal in legislative affairs in the next Congress.

New hands, to a large extent, in both Senate and House will handle the wheel if the republicans win, and of course, there will be a complete turnover should the democrats gain control.

New officers and committee chairmen in both Senate and House for the next Congress already have been seriously and widely discussed, privately generally, but publicly to some extent; while voluntary and involuntary retirement of some present leaders insures a shakeup in management of the Sixty-Sixth Congress. In addition there are prospects of increased insurgency largely confined now to the Senate, which if it is to make substantial headway, according to veteran politicians, must develop during the next Congress or be too late for the 1924 presidential campaign.

Principle changes in management of the next Congress naturally will occur in the house, from which Representative Mondell of Wyoming, republican leader, retires, either to become Senator or return to private life, while Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the powerful ways and means committee, is not a candidate for re-election. Representative Volstead of Minnesota, chairman of the judiciary committee, also is up against strong opposition for re-election.

New Republican Leader.
In event of continued republican control of the House Representatives Longworth of Ohio, Madden of Illinois, Mann of Illinois, and Burton, of Ohio, are being mentioned as possible candidates for republican floor leadership. There also has been some talk of bringing forth another republican candidate for Speaker against Representative Gallet of Massachusetts, but sentiment generally now is against the possibility of change in the Speakership on the part of the republicans.

Representative Garret of Texas, democrat, it is generally believed, would be in line for the speakership nomination should the democrats win the next House, with Representative Garner of Texas, and others being discussed for floor leaders. Defeat of Representative Campbell, republican, Kansas, chairman of the House rules committee, in the primary, also calls for a new chairman for this powerful committee and there also will be several vacancies on the important appropriations committee.

In the Senate, while Vice President Coolidge will continue "on the throne" for the next two years at least, a new president pro tempore, a new whip and several chairmen of important committees are expected in the next Congress under continued republican rule and certainly if the democrats should regain control. Senator Cummins of Iowa, now president pro tempore, according to his friends, is expected to relinquish the duties of presiding officer when the new Congress is reorganized. Senators Curtis of Kansas, Jones of Washington, and others have been mentioned as successors in event of continued republican majority. Senator Curtis also, according to his friends, is desirous of relinquishing the duties of whip, with the prospects of a newer senator securing the appointment. A primary defeat retires Senator McCumber of North Dakota, chairman of the finance committee, with Senator Smoot of Utah in line as his successor, while Senator Page of Vermont, chairman of the naval affairs committee, is not a candidate for reelection and Senator Poindexter of Washington, if reelected.

NUMBER VICTIMS OF MINE EXPLOSION
MAY REACH EIGHTY

Bodies of 50 Miners Now Lie in Sprangler Morgue—High Water
Prevents Investigation Further at Present.

TOTAL DEAD RECOVERED 63
AND 26 MEN IN HOSPITAL

By Associated Press.
SHEARANGER, Pa., Nov. 7.—The bodies of fifty miners who lost their lives in the Kelly mine explosion here yesterday lay in the city morgue today. Thirteen more are within sight in the mine, rescuers say, and 32 injured are in the hospital. There is still some uncertainty as to the number of men who went to work yesterday, but it is pointed out that if there were 112 as some believe, the missing miners will be found at a point where water has risen so rapidly after the explosion that immediate exploration is not possible. If these men went into the mine, it is asserted, they probably have perished. If that is true, the number of dead will reach eighty.

Thirteen bodies were taken from the Kelly mine later, bringing the total dead to sixty-three. There are thirteen more bodies in the mine, rescuers say. They added they did not expect to find any more bodies.

November 7, stands first on the list for the committee chairmanship.

Senate Leaders May Change.
There has been some discussion of changes in the senate floor leadership of both parties in the next Congress. Both leaders Senator Lodge of Massachusetts for the republicans and Senator Underwood of Alabama for the democrats, have had internal troubles and lack of support, but the probabilities of a change were generally believed to be remote. Senator Watson of Indiana has much support with republican senators for the republican floor leadership. Resignation of Senator Underwood, according to these high in party circles, from the floor leadership post would not be a surprise in the new Senate's reorganization. Senator Underwood's friends say that after years as leader in both Senate and House he would like a term in the ranks. If the democrats should win control, however, his friends believe Mr. Underwood probably would continue as leader. A new democratic whip, to succeed Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, was reported to be another democratic change in prospect.

Changes in rules of operations in Senate and House also were possibilities for the next Congress. In both there are strong groups preparing to fight for the overturning of the long-established seniority rule by which members of long service, regardless of other considerations, are automatically promoted to committee chairmanships and to places high on committee personnel. This rule has been under fire for many years. Veteran leaders freely admit its weakness and effects on legislation, but many hang to it until a more workable substitute is brought forth. In each new Congress the seniority rule is assailed, criticized and lambasted, but still remains in force. Whether it is to endure during another congress remains to be seen. It has been modified in some respects, bringing new blood in conferences and other activities, but its principal features are still binding.

Another effort to break down the ages-old Senate rule permitting unlimited debate also is promised. Closure advocates plan to press a new rule cutting Senatorial talking time to an hour or two on a bill. The Senate republican conference has supported such a rule favorably, but there remains strong opposition to any amendment of the unlimited debate privilege.

OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

Next Saturday is Armistice Day, the fourth anniversary of the end of the World War. That date is one that will go down in history as the one great world patriotic holiday, as great on this account as the years go on as the Fourth of July, the French Bastille Day, or other national holidays.

Throughout the world the countries that participated in the great war will observe Armistice Day. In practically every place in the United States where there is an American Legion post some celebration has been planned. All of which brings us to the point that, although Middlesboro has an organized American Legion, enough former soldiers to make a fit observance, and enough patriotic citizens to back the Legion in anything of the sort that it would care to undertake, not one step has been taken to show that the day is even recognized here.

Blueville is planning a big day Saturday when stores will be closed, and all of the city's organizations will unite to do honor to the day. Yet Pineville is not much more than half as big as Middlesboro and its Legion post has not near as many members as ours might have.

What is the matter here? Have we no patriotism? Or is it that we are so encased with the spirit of indifference and commercialism that everything that does not tend directly toward money in our pockets or feathers in our caps has no appeal? No patriotic holiday has been observed in this city this year. What is the reason?

PROGRESS IN EVIDENCE IN HARLAN

Progress so greatly in evidence in Harlan, has taken a new form in connection with the educational system.

The dismal looking building on east Clover street, which perhaps brings many school day memories to the older inhabitants of this town, has undergone miraculous changes and now serves as a home for twenty of the teachers of the public school system. Although commonly known as the Hen House or Convent, those who have visited the Teachers' Club, can give astonishing reports to the outside world.

The old class rooms on the second floor of the building have been partitioned off into seven bedrooms and a bath. A large hall into which all rooms open, contains chairs and a stove about which the teachers gather of evenings.

Some of the partitions on the first floor have been torn out to make a large, cozy living room. The dining room has also been enlarged by removing a partition between it and the bed room. Besides the large dining room and bed room there is a small reception room, hall and three bed rooms on this floor.

The life in the Teachers' Club from the day of meeting has been one of animation and good fellowship.

With common interest and with a great desire for putting off all possible into the year's work at Harlan, and receiving its equivalent in satisfaction and pleasure, the numerous inconveniences due to the incompleteness of the new school building have been more than overshadowed.

Few first or second class cities in Kentucky furnish homes for the teachers.

Yet, Harlan, with its progressive spirit for improving its educational system, has not only enlarged its school building, increased its teaching force, and so improved its Home Economics Department that it now conforms with the Smith-Hughes Law, but it has also taken a step further in giving its teachers a comfortable home. The spirit of enthusiasm the teachers brought to Harlan, together with the cordial welcome extended to them by the citizens, and the comfortable surroundings of the Teachers' Club, heightens the spirit of contentment and will consequently raise the standard of efficiency of the teaching force.

With this vision of foresight, and a desire for elevation, the Harlan school board has this year put into effect such improvements in the public school system as will give the citizens of Harlan a right to be proud of their town and the educational system they have so loyally supported.

The management of this home is in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Meek, which fact, in itself, insures the highest success of the plan in every particular.—Harlan Enterprise.

FORD'S FUTURE

Henry Ford For President Clubs are springing up in many cities. The one recently organized in New York is preparing literature for an extensive campaign.

The campaign will be wisely managed, bank on that, for level headed business men are backing it.

It is not impossible that Ford will run for president at the next election. Nor is it impossible that he may walk into the White House when Harding moves out. Strange things happen in politics. Four years ago today, Warren G. Harding had no idea that he had been selected by the Fates to lead the nation.

"We never dreamed of it," Mrs. Harding said at Marion during the campaign.

When Ford gets an idea into his head, he usually finds a way to carry it out, no matter how visionary. Recently he took a trip three miles underground in a coal mine, and decided that mining is not a fit job for a human being.

It's not by coincidence that, shortly after, Ford bought a property containing 150,000,000 tons of coal, near Steubenville, O., of the Strip Mine sort—coal exposed on the surface where it can be mined by daylight with dredges, no one underground.

What would Ford, as a presidential candidate, do about liquor? Here is the answer, as he put it the other day.

"There won't be any prohibition problem within 15 years. By that time the old drinkers will have died out and we won't have any trouble about enforcing the law. That will take care of the moonshine and bootlegging problems, too. The moonshine takes care of its own problem, you see, for it kills those who drink it, if you will just give it time. Alcohol never did any good and never will."

ON TO FLORIDA FOR THE WINTER

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 7.—Somebody in Maine or Minnesota discovered a few years ago that he could load his family into the family flapper and drive to Florida for the winter at an expense about equal to the railroad fare for one person.

Now motor cars, from the quiet running sedan to the rattling, banging flapper with frying pans, lanterns, coffee-pots, buckets and other utensils attached all over them from radiators to spare tire racks descend upon Florida in droves bearing the vanguard of thousands of tourists who motor to the peninsula in the fall from all parts of the union.

The movement is not expected to be in full swing before the middle of November, but for weeks they have been trickling through the gateways and by October 15 it was estimated that during the daylight hours one tourist car was crossing the border over the three main highways every fifteen minutes. Some of the vehicles include contraptions never before seen on four wheels. One favored by many of the travelers is a chassis with a one room house upon it, equipped with everything from stationary wash basin to rickety chairs. The flapper with camping equipment suspended from every possible part of the car to which bits of wire or cord can be attached, is the most common long distance traveler. A hay burner lantern, of the variety usually seen about farmhouses, may be attached to a radiator cap. Under the car may be swinging two or three water buckets, each filled with cooking utensils or other articles. A frying pan may be attached to a door handle and the running boards are usually carrying all the baggage they can and the inevitable small tent that may be erected within a few minutes when the tourist finds a likely place to stop for the night. Every city and town in Florida along the motor routes within the last few years has established a camp site, and in the case of those on the outskirts of the larger places, are equipped with electric lights, water mains and sewerage. Every camp now is under the supervision of the State Board of Health and one sanitary engineer devotes his entire time during the winter to the inspection of them.

Today I can't, I'll surely go
Tomorrow.

I'll read the books I ought to read
Tomorrow,
I'll buy those close-books that we need
Tomorrow;
I'll fix that table for wife,
I'll sharpen up that carving knife,
I'll start to lead a nobler life
Tomorrow.

I'm gonna cut my smoking down,
Tomorrow,
I'll eat less lunch when downtown,
Tomorrow;
I realize I'm oversize,
And that my way of life's unwise,
I'll start in taking exercise
Tomorrow.

The world would be made over new

If folks did what they promised to
Tomorrow;
Ains, our good intent goes lame,
And so we wallow in our shame,
And things will be about the same

HONEYMOONERS ABROAD

BY ZOE BECKLEY

"Look here, Stanley, you have had that pleasant assignment over a week and not a thing done to help me."

The voice was that of Victor Consins, telephoning from London. His usual urbanity was now a nervous anger. "Here is Duryea, here in London, winding the shroud about my position as European manager and in three days he will have finished the job unless you take his mind off me and get him back to Paris."

"I've got the girl out here at Fontainebleau," protested Stanley. "Nella and I are doing our best. We are working—"

"You will have to work faster," said Consins. "Listen to me, tomorrow morning Nella must steal away and take the 10:15 airplane from Le Bourget to London. I will meet her at Croc-don at half past twelve. Meanwhile—"

His directions were explicit. The Stanleys were accustomed to follow instructions of a delicate nature.

That night Edna did not sleep well although the little inn to which the Stanleys had brought her was quiet and clean. Her few hours of sleep were troubled with dreams of catastrophe. For three days now there had been no letter from Jack, and his letters were short enough with business before that. Edna could not know that the Stanleys had intercepted Jack's letters and destroyed them before Edna had come down to the morning coffee and rolls.

She attributed his neglect to absorption in business affairs. He wasn't thinking of her. Had he ever thought of her? Hadn't business always come first? He said it was for her sake he worked so wholeheartedly. But was it? Didn't he love business beyond anything—for its own sake?

She rose in the morning, wan and dispirited, went down to the garden and found Mark Stanley alone there.

gay and debonair as ever. "Where is Nella?" asked Edna, glancing about.

Stanley bit his jaunty lip. "She got a wire from a schoolmate passing through Paris. She begged Nella to run into town and give her the day. She will be back by night. I think."

Edna was filled with uneasy whis-perings—nothing she could lay a finger on, but a vague sense of things not being right. She wanted to get away from the solitude of the country where Nella had left her, without any thought, with this strange fellow she only half understood.

"Mark—I want to go back to Paris."

Stanley looked at the pretty troubled face.

"All right, child, I am getting tired of this myself. The moment Nella gets back, we will hop the train to Paris."

At that moment Nella was mounting the morning air in a cross channel flier headed for London, in accord with Consins' plan.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

MARY'S GARDEN

The next person the Twins met while hunting for Mother Goose's broom was Contrary Mary in her garden.

"Good morning," said Nick and Nancy, politely as they came to the gate. "Good evening," answered Contrary Mary contrarily. "Who are you and where are you going?"

"We're not going anywhere just now," said Nancy. "We'd like to stay here for a little while and talk to you, if you don't mind. We're pretty tired for we've been traveling."

Contrary Mary, who had a kind heart in spite of her contrariness, invited them to sit down on some large cockle-shells while she went around with her watering pot.

"Where have you been?" she asked curiously. "What made you so tired?"

"Oh, we've been everywhere, I guess," replied Nick. "To Mars and Jupiter and all along the Milky Way and to half a dozen other stars. Mother Goose lost her broom in the sky somewhere so we came here to find it. Did you see it?"

"No, I didn't," answered Mary. "Would you like to see my garden?" "Oh, we'd love to," cried Nancy, springing up. "We're all rested now."

"I grow only useful things," went on Contrary Mary. "These are the lady's slippers in this bed. Those are bachelor buttons over there! That vine on the trellis grows Dutchmen's pipes and yonder is Indian paint brush. Here are the catfalls and some rabbit-foot and foxgloves (though why foxes need gloves I can't say.)"

"And there are lady's tresses, jeweled, monk's hood, pitcher plant rat, tie-bos, skull-cap, sneeze-wed, soap-plant, satr-flower, sunflower. And here is the twinflower, the sweetest of them all. You shall have a bouquet. It will bring you luck."

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautiful, dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge with soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Blooming Grove, O., Nov. 7.—This village has even lost its postoffice, but it is already looking forward to national fame. Its 150 inhabitants are already perking up for reception of President Harding when he returns to private life.

The hopes of Blooming Grove are raised by the recent purchase by the president of the old Harding farm here, where he was born. Townfolk see him bringing fame and prosperity back to the community.

Reminiscing of the boyhood of Warren—that's what they call him here—has been a favorite Blooming Grove sport for two years now. Even the younger generation have caught the spirit, for the topic of conversation at the General Store, when overcoats are loosened, chewing tobacco masticated to near-liquid and the old timers gathered around the cannon store, always switches to Warren.

The young folks have heard the stories of his boyhood, him romps with this one and that one, and the days he attended the district school with them, just as though he would never become a great man.

Now there's a new element in the talk of Warren. The town is looking ahead. And, judging from all that is being said, Harding will not lack for opponents if he wishes to pitch any horseshoes. There will be electricity, too, replacing the present oil lamps, for the residents have already got together on this.

I am glad the president bought the place, says Frank Baker, keeper of one general store. He is young, but he has heard the stories over and over.

With Harding coming, we are pretty sure to have the Mansfield-Marion highway pass Blooming Grove. We will get to town easier and we will see more people riding by.

Diagonally across the corners from the general store is another general store, owned by Perry Lindley. The postoffice used to alternate between the two stores—at Baker's when the Democrats were in. But there has been no post office for nine years now, the residents explain. Once a day, a rural free delivery carrier drives out from Gallion, six miles from here, and from his flivver makes distribution of letters and catalogues.

Bloomfield Township of which the village is a part, is Democratic. But Blooming Grove has always been republican. It has long been a Hardin settlement, and nearly all Hardings have been Republicans.

All but two, says Mrs. H. E. Erickson, herself & Harding, who lives o the farm the president has bought. And they are dead, she added. One turned Democrat during the free silver campaign, and his son seemed to follow in his footsteps.

There are no officials here, no public buildings except the nearby Harding schoolhouse where the Hardings hold their annual reunions. Two churches, Methodist and Adventist, are being used. The Baptist church the Hardings used to attend has been abandoned.

Villagers hope the return of the president will see the old church remodeled and a pastor called.

Hardly any of the buildings and the barns of Harding's boyhood days remain on the Harding farm. Dr. Geo. T. Harding, Jr., of Mariou—brother of the president—thinks it will be made into a golf course, with a summer home or clubhouse replacing the present farm house.

The Harding land is in the midst of Central Ohio's picturesque rolling country. It is ideal for golf links. Woods, knolls, a creek and a sudden rise in the ground form natural hazards.

But such details, however, are merely conjectured by Blooming Grove. The village knows and likes to boast that the president has bought the old Harding farm and will make Blooming Grove.

QUICKLY SOOTHED
BY THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

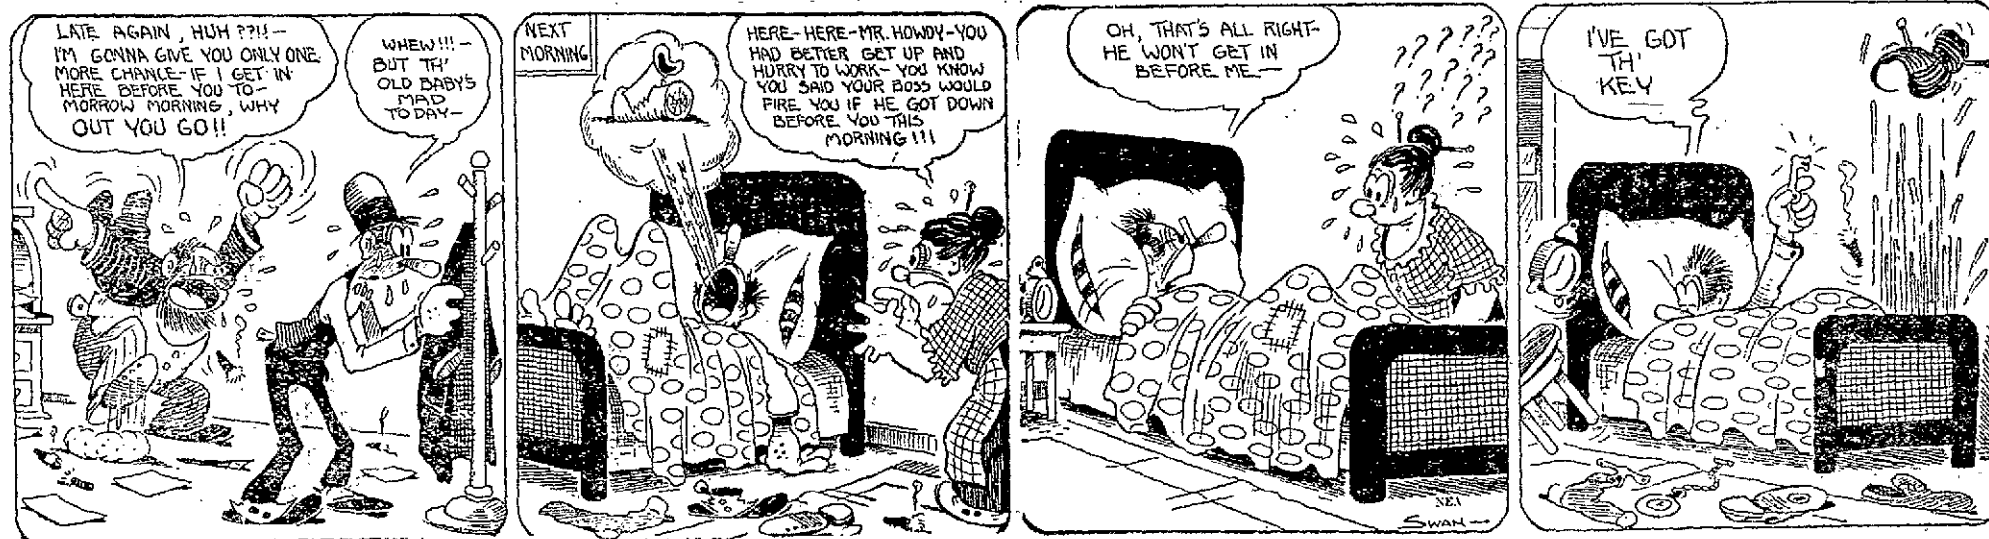

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Menthio-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Glad rapture of your smile, I may center of a stale loaf

1 1/2 cups cracker crumbs
1-1 cup melted butter

1 1/2 cup cream
1-2 cup oyster liquor

Salt and pepper
Slight grating nutmeg

Pick over and drain from liquor the oysters. Add butter to bread and the cracker crumbs. In the bottom of a buttered dish place a layer of crumbs, over this a thick layer of oysters, adding half the cream and oyster liquid and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Re-oysters have a layer of crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Always have only two layers of oysters as any more would leave the midthe top and bottom layers would be over-cooked.

CHAPTER II.

At last Eve arrived at the pines again, and saw the far, glimmer of Quintana's fire. It was almost breathless. But was not very far away and there was little time for the taking of a dangerous man.

Two enormous pines grew together near a sapling, she knelt and, with both hands, scooped big hollow in the immemorial of pine needles. Here she placed her trap. It took all her strength to set it; to fasten the around the base of the sapling

I now working with only the glimmer of her torch, she ed everything with pine needles. was not possible to restore the floor; the place remained vis-à-vis a darker, rougher patch on the red carpet of needles beaten smooth by recades of rain and snow. No animal would have trodden suspicious space. But it was a she had to deal with—a danger—but reasoning man with few and pined instincts—and with no experience in traps; and, therefore, in no id of them.

Before she started she had thrown artridge into the breach of her

Now she pocketed her torch and ted herself between the two big es and about three feet behind the den trap.

Dawn was not far away. She look- upward through the high pinetops ere stars shone; and saw no sign dawn. But the watcher by the fire yond was astir, now, in the immi- nence of dawn, and evidently meant warm himself before leaving.

Eve could hear him piling dry ood on the fire; the light on the ee trunks grew brighter; a pungent ek of smoke was drawn through the rest aisles. She sniffed it, listened, ad watched, her rifle across her nees.

Eve never had been afraid of anything. She was not afraid of this. It came to combat she would ave to kill him. It never entered her mind to fear Quintana's rifle. Even Clinch was not as swift with a rifle as she. Only Stormont had been swifter—thank God—

She thought of Stormont — sat there in the terrific darkness loving him, her heart of a child tremulous with adoration.

Then the memory of Darragh pushed in and hot hatred possessed her. Always, in her heart, she had distrust- ed the man.

Instinct had warned her. A spy! What evil had he worked already? Where was her father? Evidently Quintana had escaped him at Drow- ed Valley. Quintana was yonder by his fire, preparing to flee the wild- ness where men hunted him. But where was Clinch? Had this sneak, Darragh, betrayed him? Was Clinch already in the clutch of State Troop- ers? Was he in jail?

At the thought the girl felt slight- ly faint, then a rush of angry blood stung her face in the darkness. Ex- cept for game and excise violations the stories they told about Clinch were lies.

It became plain to her that he was nearly ready to depart. She watched him preparing. And now she could see him plainly, and knew him to be Quintana and no other.

a long time; then, with a sudden up- ward look at the zenith where a light stained a cloud, he picked up his rifle.

At that moment Eve called to him in a clear and steady voice.

The effect on Quintana was instant; he was behind a tree before her voice ceased.

"Hallo! Hi! You over there!" she called again. "This is Eve Strayer. I'm looking for Clinch! He hasn't been home all night. Have you seen him?"

After a moment she saw Quintana's head watching her — not at the shoulder-height of a man but close to the ground and just above the ground.

"Hey!" she cried. "What's the matter with you over there? I am asking you who you are and if you have seen my father?"

After a while she saw Quintana coming toward her, circling, creeping swiftly from tree to tree.

As he fitted through the shadows the trees between which she was standing hid her from him for a moment. Instantly she placed her rifle on the ground and placed pine needles over it.

As Quintana continued his encircling maneuvers Eve, apparently perplexed, walked out into the clear space, put- ting the concealed trap between her and Quintana, who now came stealthily toward her from the rear.

It was evident that he had recon- sidered sufficiently to satisfy himself that the girl was alone and that no trick, no ambushade, threatened him.

And now, from behind a pine, and startlingly near her, came Quintana, moving with confident grace yet hold- ing his rifle ready for any emergency.

Eve's horrified stare was natural, she had not realized that any man could wear so evil a smile.

Quintana stopped short a dozen paces away. The dramatic in him de- manded of the moment its full value. He swept off his hat with a flourish, bowed deeply where he stood.

"Ah!" he cried gaily, "the happy encounter, Senorita. God is too good to us. And it was but a moment since my thoughts were of you! I swear! It!"

It was not fear; it was a sort of slow horror of this man that began to creep over the girl. She stared at him—at his brilliant eyes, at his thick mouth, too red—shuddered slight- ly. But the toe of her right foot touched the stock of her rifle under the pine needles.

She held herself under control. "So it's you!" she said unsteadily. "I thought our people had caught you."

Quintana laughed. "Charming child," he said, "it is I who have now caught your people. And now, my God—I catch you! It is very funny. Is it not?"

She looked straight into Quintana's black eyes, but the look he returned sent the shamed blood surging into her face.

"By God," he said between his white and even teeth—"by God!"

Staring at her, he slowly disengag- ed his pack, let it fall behind him on the pine needles; rested his rifle on the

it, slipped out of his mackinaw and add that across his rifle—always keep- ing his brilliant eyes on her.

His lips tightened, the muscles in his dark face grew tense; his eyes be- came a blazing insult.

For an instant he stood there, un- encumbered, a wiry, graceful shape in his woolen breeches, leggings, and his gray shirt open at the throat. Then he took a step forward. And the girl watched him, fascinated.

One pace, two, a third, a fourth — the girls involuntary cry echoed the stumbling crash of the man thrashing, clashing, scrambling in the clenched jaws of the bear trap amid a whirl of flying pine needles.

He screamed once, tried to rise, he turned blindly to seize the jaws that clutched him; and suddenly crouched, loose-jointed, cringing like a trapped wolf—the true fatalist among our les- ser brothers.

ITALIAN PREMIER WORLDS YOUNGEST

ROME, Nov. 9.—One of the world's youngest political leaders today is con- sidering here with King Victor Em- manuel on the formation of a new Italian cabinet in which he will act as premier and besides will take on his youthful shoulders three separate portfolios.

He is Benito Mussolini, 38—before the war a leader of Italian Socialists feated the strike by putting his 700,000 followers into the jobs the strikers had quit.

This intensified the bitterness be- tween the bolshevistic elements and the Fascisti Open fighting broke out. At the king's request Mussolini this summer demobilized his forces to aid in restoring order. But he did not "demobilize" his political power.

Youth Steps Into Breach.

party. He became editor of their news- paper organ, "Avanti." That was im- mediately before the outbreak of the World War in 1914.

When the war came German Social- ists voted as a bloc to support the fatherland in its military adventures. When Italy entered the lists on the side of the Allies, Mussolini wished his followers to give the same support to Italy.

Broke With Socialists.

The Italian Socialists refused. Then Mussolini broke with them. He en- listed in the army.

The ex-Socialist leader came back from the front after the armistice cor- eared with wounds and medals and bearing in his heart a bitter hatred for the Italian radicals who had fail- ed their country in its time of need.

He found Italian industrial and economic life upset. Unemployment was rife and Italy's great economic safety valve—emigration to the Unit- ed States—had been cut off.

These conditions had prepared a fertile spawning ground for bolshevist propaganda. Agitators, many of them inspired by funds sent from abroad, were at work in all of Italy's indus- trial centers and were gaining many converts.

Then the germ of the Fascisti or- ganization was born in Mussolini's mind. He began banding together his former army comrades in political groups, sworn to oppose the Red flag both at the voting booths and through "direct action" with sticks, staves or rifles.

By the beginning of this year Mus- solini had organized 700,000 young men, all ready to do his bidding.

In answer the political extremists called a general strike. Mussolini de-

Ouch! Rub Backache, Stiffness, Lumbago

Rub Pain from back with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lame- ness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Linger up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Too Much Meat Hurts Kidneys

Take a glass of Saito, to Flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up, and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, consti- pation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, blad- der and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kid- neys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Saito from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous Saito is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, com- bined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kid- neys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irri- tates, thus often ending bladder dis- orders.

Jad Saito can not injure any one; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney dis- orders.
